

COUNCIL AWARDS LIGHTING CONTRACT

Chicago Company Chosen to Furnish 208 Ornamental Posts and 201 Lights.

Contract for furnishing posts and light units for extensive additions to the city's ornamental lighting system this year has been awarded to the Freeman Sweet company, Chicago, on its bid of $33.33 per post and $15.33 per light unit. The Jansville Electric company will install the 201 posts at a cost of $1,500, and do the wiring without charge.

The two contracts were awarded by the council in regular meeting Monday night, after the board of public works, the resolution, offered by Ald. J. K. Jensen, of the lighting committee, was passed unanimously.

The contract calls for 208 Standard and 201 light units making the total cost $11,330.43. Seven extra standards are being ordered to be ready for re-placements when necessary. The cost of installation will bring the total of the 1921 light program to $12,860.42, or within $144 of the $13,000 appropriation provided in the budget.

The Freeman Sweet company's bid was the lowest of 12 submitted on the Jansville Electric company's bid was the second lowest. The bid was considered seriously by the board of public works but rejected in favor of the Chicago firm's offer.

"The Union Metal post has certain advantages over the solid cast iron post," said City Engineer C. V. Kerch. "At the same time it has its disadvantages. In my opinion, either post would be suitable here."

The contract with the Freeman Sweet company was executed Tuesday by the city clerk and mayor and early shipment will be asked.

Interurban Line Given Aid by City

Early completion of the entire stretch of brick paving on South Franklin street from West Milwaukee to Pleasant street, was made possible through the aid given by the city council Monday evening. It was voted unanimously to carry out the agreement with the Rockford & Interurban company made a week ago at an informal meeting which is briefly, that:

The interurban company will furnish the rails and materials necessary to rebuild its track on South Franklin and the city will do the work of installation. The company is to be indemnified to the city for the amount.

The city will do the paving of the road-bed, the interurban company paying only the extra cost of paving brought about because of the presence of rails on the street. The understanding is to relieve the interurban company of the burden of paying for paving between tracks, the same as was done with the Jansville Traction company.

Officers of the Rockford & Interurban company are: B. C. Cobb, president; D. J. Dechert, vice-president; W. H. Lommons, secretary; and W. C. Sparks, vice-president and general manager.

HAVE EXHIBIT HERE

Bailey, of that city have opened a demonstration of needlework in the store formerly occupied by the stationery firm of Coburn and Downing, East Milwaukee street. They will be there for a week, showing work done by the needles that they sell.

"Kidnapper" Is Determined To Win His Child

Delavan—Following failure of an attempt to secure possession of his 3-year-old daughter, Mary, from the home of E. Pinnow here, where his wife has lived since leaving his home at Lincoln, Neb., Edward Morris will return to his home to complete arrangements in court to secure the return of the child and an absolute divorce.

"It was the biggest surprise of my life," said Morris, when I received notice from my wife that she would never return home. We were living at Lincoln, Neb., where I was engaged in the tractor business. She left home Sept. 23, 1920, for a visit in Delavan, and took the child. Four weeks later she wrote that she would never return and five weeks after that she started divorce proceedings, charging non-support, adultery and the custody of our child, Mary.

"She came to Lincoln to appear in court against me, and I demanded that the child be present. The court gave a week's time for her to return with the child. A week elapsed and she did not return. Finally, coming there Jan. 14, I then filed a cross complaint, asking for a divorce and the custody of the child. The court refused her a divorce and gave her six months to effect a reconciliation and return to me. She left Nebraska, returning to her father's home in Delavan, taking the child with her.

"Thinking that I might effect a reconciliation with her," said Morris, "I came to Delavan, Feb. 20, and found that it was absolutely hopeless. She refused to return. Saturday I went to the Pinnow home to get a life insurance policy which I had in my wife's name to change in favor of my daughter. There was no one at home except my wife's sister-in-law. I could not get it. My daughter Mary said that 'she wanted to ride with daddy.' The woman said she could not and I took her away. When I got out in front I kept on going. If it had not been for a puncture in my daughter's tire, I would have been driven over the state line. I released the child, knowing that I could get her custody according to law, anyway."

Morris was raised in Delavan and lived there up to the time he was married. He is non-committal on grounds of his request for a divorce.

Shares of Swift & Company are widely distributed. The map shows the number of shares held in each state and has been dotted indicate the proportionate distribution.

Who is Swift & Company?

Swift & Company is not a one man or one family affair. It is a company owned by more than 40,000 people, scattered over the face of the globe—forty thousand shareholders with voting powers and a share in the risks and profits of the business.

Most of the forty thousand live here in the United States. But some of them live in France, some in England, others in the Philippines, Hawaii, Alaska.

13,000 of them are women.

Nearly 14,000 of them are employees.

The average individual holdings are small—about 37 shares apiece.

No one person or family owns a majority of the stock.

In fact, it would take 900 of the largest shareholders pooled together to vote 51 percent of the stock!

These shareholders are the men and women whose money, in the form of capital, makes Swift & Company possible.

They are jealous of the character and reputation of their organization, proud of what it is doing, proud to have a part in supplying to the world such products as Swift's Premium Ham and Bacon, Brookfield Sausage, Silverleaf Brand Pure Lard, Wool Soap, Swift & Company's fresh meats, etc.

The executives of Swift & Company maintain the high standards of these products as an imperative duty not only to the 40,000 shareholders, but to the public.

BERGDOLL'S RELEASE TO GET HIDDEN IS INVESTIGATED

Washington—The house of investigation of the escape of Bergdoll, Philadelphia draftsman, is continuing its hearing. For the purpose of recovering the $100,000 ransom money, he claimed he had been held in a Virginia mountain. Samuel Hill, former acting judge general of the army, and one of the attorneys, was asked to appear.

Major General Harris, adjutant general of the army, declared Monday he alone was responsible for Bergdoll's release. General Harris said Mr. Anderson had appealed to him to let the prisoner out, assuring him the draft dodger's buried gold story was true and that Bergdoll would be returned to Fort Jay as soon as he had reclaimed it.

CITY AGREES TO BUY 4 TRAILERS

$5,400 Purchase of Garbage Wagons Made by Committee, Is Confirmed.

Confirmation of Ald. J. J. Dunn's purchase of four 2 1/2-ton dump trailers for the city's garbage collection system to be started May 15 was made by the city council during the meeting Monday evening. The trailers are being manufactured by the Edgerton Highway Trailer company and are expected to be shipped here this week.

The total cost given in the contract is $7,250 less 25 percent, i. e., $5,437.50, or $5,400 net. This makes the net cost per trailer $1,350. The trailers are of the horse-drawn type known as the Highway Garbage and ash trailers with a 2-wheel steel dump body, fully equipped ready for use.

With the purchase of the trucks confirmed, the board of health is anxious to have farmers send in their bids for the garbage. The garbage will make good food for hogs and there should be a big demand for it on the farms around Janesville, said Harry Garbutt, secretary of the board of health. "There will be no doubt about it," he said. "If one farmer does not care to bid for all of it, we will consider several bids. The main thing is to get the garbage off the farms in time to get to the city's officers of what they will pay per ton."

"We are also anxious to have men send in their applications for city garbage collectors. It is proposed to have four men, one to be in charge and three assistants, two men to a team. When one trailer is filled then a farmer will come and draw it away to his farm, returning it to the city by the time the next trailer has been loaded. The plan is to have two trailers on each side of the river, drawn by hogs."

Bids for having the city's garbage and applications for collectors' jobs will be received by the health board until next Tuesday. They may be sent to Mr. Garbutt, 467 Terrace street.

PETER BAY'S SAYS HE HAD ARRANGED TO PAY

Peter Bays, owner of Bays Creamery, Cottage avenue, stated that the suits filed in municipal court by creditors comes from a situation that he had to meet last December, when he found that with falling prices and slow market he had some $30,000 worth of cheese in his hands and little ready money to meet his bills. He states that an arrangement was made whereby he was to pay the farmers for milk delivered and as much as he could as possible, he has sold the cheese. This, he declares, he has done, but has some 30 farmers were creditors and he hoped to be able to meet all the obligations. The suits against him by five farmers will come up in municipal court Friday.

$400 IS BID FOR LOCAL RESTAURANT

Sheriff Cash Whipple, officiated as the auctioneer of the property at the corner of West Milwaukee and Academy streets when it was offered for sale Tuesday morning to satisfy two mortgages amounting to $400. One party bid on the entire property the highest being $450, of Mrs. Garbutt. Attorneys for the mortgagee reserved the right to reject any bids. Sheriff Whipple then sold bids on various articles of property. Several made low bids.

Notice to the Public

In rejecting my bid for cement sidewalk work for 1921 the council did not give the citizens of Janesville a square deal. My bid was $1.35 per square yard. The bidder who got the contract asks $1.40 per square yard, 4 1/2 cents more per yard than my bid. The successful bidder is asking 45 cents per cubic yard. As everyone familiar with sidewalk building knows, excavation and filling is a mere trifle compared to the cost of laying a sidewalk. In my entire six years as city engineer, my bill for excavation and filling did not amount to $50. I will build sidewalks according to plans and specifications of the city for $1.20 per square yard and 50 cents per cubic yard for filling and excavation. I solicit your business for 1921.

The federation insists that no further measures of occupation be taken and demands that the German government respect any promises it may make.

'THE GIRL WHO HAD NO CHANCE'

By Marion Rubincam

CHAPTER XXIII.

FROM THE SOUTH

So while Myra danced half the night and slept out the morning, Ruth was worrying her soul as to what she would do and how she would manage. But she felt better at least, that her parents were in the South, and waited eagerly for news from them.

A letter came finally, in her father's hand, and Ruth opened it with a feeling of great eagerness. Letters from her father were always a joy to her. She had had few enough of them, for neither of them had been away much for the last 10 or 15 years. Those she had, she kept.

"My dear daughter," this letter began, with a touch of old-fashioned formality. "Your mother wrote you of our safe arrival, and I waited until something happened worth relating before I undertook writing my letter to you. But I find, now I have seated myself here for a long time, that nothing has occurred. Yet I have volumes to tell you."

Ruth smiled in anticipation. One thing she had beyond all other girls of her acquaintance, a sympathetic friendship with her father that was of far more value to her than all the money in the world. So she thought, as she read this new letter from him, as Sarah's house in a town, I might almost call it a village, quite a bit smaller than Marktown—yet with such a different atmosphere! There is a college near here, small as colleges go, and not fashionable, but it gives a tone to the life here that was at home sadly lacking.

Your young friend Turner would call it "high school." I am afraid, but I fancy that you would enjoy it more than our present home. I am trying to get some tutoring, helped by Sarah's brother, who is a teacher at the college. And if I do, or I may say when I do, I shall, it is possible, send for you. You may have part of the winter here. That would make me feel less lonely than I do now."

Through she was alone, Ruth made a little protesting sound. Selfish! She was glad to be able to send him to a place where he was happy—and obviously he was.

"You would be popular here, for you have depth and learning, and a sense of the real things of life, as

The Letters of Tessie and Joe

DEAR JOE:

The baby seems to be developing a persistent aversion for red. I hope and pray it's not a symbol that he's got Socialist strain in him anywhere, but the fact remains that he makes a noise just like "Hurrh!" whenever he sees anything red, and he won't let me feed him anything but carrots.

I'd hate to think I had a Socialist for a son, Joe, because I don't believe a Socialist will ever be president and the son would be handicapped from his very cradle. As for I hope none will ever be elected president, because can you imagine them, Joe, the very next day after election parade round with enormous collection boxes making everybody hide up! Anyway, as I say, I hope this new passion for red isn't a symbol, but to be on the safe side I've draped the little angel with the flags of the allies, hoping it might have some unconscious moral influence.

And oh yes, the little angel has learned his first trick! He shakes day-day now. Can you imagine that Joe? Of course I have to take hold of his little arm and sort of help him to do it, and some people might regard that as a sort of alluring circumstance, but the point is, Joe, he just lets his little arm be shaken as if he was perfectly willing and would let it all by himself if he thought of it. Whereas some children will resist and make themselves very unpleasant about it. This every thing into consideration Joe I don't hardly think I had a Socialist blood in him. Although of course, in another way I suppose the Socialists pride themselves in waving everybody in sight, friend and foe regardless, so after all Joe will hardly know what to think.

Lovingly, A

Tessie

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON.
Letters May Be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of 15 and am going with a man of 23. This man drinks and sometimes he does not care to be with me. Afterwards I find that he has been drinking. At other times he seems to enjoy being with me. My parents object to my going with him, but I can't tell him I don't love him, but he has said he loved me.

I have pleaded with him to quit drinking and to go to church, but he refuses. He says he will not go to church until he quits drinking. He is a nice man around girls and has a car, and knows how to show a girl a good time.

Should I go with him? JENNIE.

What Shall I Do?

Answered by VIRGINIA PAGE

Out of the Frying Pan

"Dear Miss Page—We are two girls 17 years old. In love with two young fellows. Our parents object to us going with them for very unattractive reasons, such as character and so on. We know it is improper to meet a man in the street corner, so as we want to go to dances with them, how can we manage to meet them where would you suggest? If our parents still object, would you leave home?—W. S. & L. G."

Well now, where would you go and what would you do if you left home? No, I wouldn't. I wouldn't trade my home, where I am fed and clothed and taken care of when I'm ill and when I'm not, for anything else, even if I don't always think days of study, and evenings when she and her father read some particularly fascinating book.

There was Tim, of course! Again the warm glow came through her at thought of him. But Tim was different—her father simply did not appreciate him. Tim was already speeding to a "broader environment" and when he had made good there, which would be soon, he would send for her to come to him. Surely then she would have everything her father would want for her—a chance to develop herself intellectually, contact with "her sort" of people—and Tim and all Tim's love.

It was only a question of waiting. "And meantime," she told Mrs. Belding, "who had also read the letter," "meantime, I have my stay here in Marktown, and I have to make my fortune. I can't go away to do it, so it has to be done here."

Well, dearie, Mrs. Belding announced in her usual gently discouraging tone, "I only get a dollar and a half a day sewing—that won't make anyone's fortune."

"At least, then, I won't try sewing as a career," Ruth laughed. "And for the moment, the folk quite strong and able to conquer the future."

HOW TO PREPARE CEREALS

Stir the cereals gradually into the required quantity of boiling water, allowing one teaspoon of salt to each cup of cereal. Fine granular cereals may be mixed first with a small amount of cold water to prevent lumping; then add boiling water. Stir flake cereals with a fork.

Cook rapidly over a flame five or ten minutes, then in a double boiler. For prepared cereals allow plenty of time to cook thoroughly, as their ease of digestion and palatability depend largely on this.

Baking Powder Doughnuts.—Two cups flour, one-half cup sugar, one-half cup milk, two and one-half teaspoons baking powder, one-quarter teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon nutmeg, one tablespoon shortening, one egg. Sift together the dry ingredients, then add the beaten egg, milk and shortening. Set aside to chill, then roll out a half inch thick on a floured board. Cut with a biscuit cutter and fry in deep, hot fat.

HELPFUL SUGGESTIONS

If Suit or Skirt is Sponged with vinegar and pressed with heavy cloth like tailors use all shine will be removed.

To Clean the Iron Range on oil or gasoline stove and spiders with grease burned on place on a bed of hot coals for a few minutes and the grease will all burn off, leaving them like new.

Sand in the Sink Waste Pipe.—In washing spongy vegetables, such as spinach, use a large pan and drain off the water carefully that the sand may not go down the sink pipe. Even house flies will cut and wear a pipe more than millions of water.

Wall Paper Cleaner.—Mix flour and water and a little cornmeal to a stiff dough; use as you would bought wall cleaner.

Dark Oak Furniture is very likely to be marred where there are little folks playing about the house. Whenever you notice scratches or scuffed places put a little colored lacquer on the spots and go over the furniture with a good polish. You cannot tell where the spots were and the wood will look like new.

A Little Nutmeg Added to the white sauce of creamed fish gives a delicious flavor.

By Washing and Scrubbing Potatoes with a stiff brush, then paring them with one of the rustless steel knives, they will not stain or injure the most carefully kept hands.

When Washing a Clothline wrap around washboard and scrub with soapuds.

SHOENES DYES

China Cement—Household dishes broken now represent a loss, and a good cement kept on hand will repair a broken dish so it can be used again and save the cost of new dishes.

China may be cemented with white lead. Rub the white lead on both broken edges, press the parts firmly together, tie, then set aside for a week to harden.

Mucilage for Labels, Etc.—Soak good glue (two and one-half ounces) in 10 ounces of water for one day. After this add rock candy or loaf sugar (four and one-half ounces) and gum arabic (one and one-half ounces). When these are dissolved it is ready to spread on paper.

It keeps well and does not get brittle or wrinkled, and when spread on paper and dried the sheets can be piled up without sticking together.

For labeling fruit jars, etc., sheets of paper may be coated and dried for use. When a label is wanted for any article a piece may be cut out, the name written on it and pasted on. It is always ready.

Mashed potatoes can be prepared in a cake mixer in much less time than it takes to prepare them by hand, and are exceptionally light and fluffy.

Large quantities for church suppers and other gatherings may be mixed in a bread mixer.

GYPSY WOMAN

"BLESSER" WOMAN IN FORT STORE

(By Special Correspondent.)
Fort Atkinson—West Atkinson. Roe caught a woman gypsy hanging the money in the cash drawer of the Bartlett furniture store he was told by her that she just wanted to "bless the money." Instead of ordering her out of the store she convinced the money. In the meantime the gypsy went upstairs where she was found lurking with the safe. When she went out she found the cash was just $50 short.

The gypsy band was stopped on its way out of town in autos but the woman was not among them. Three of the gypsies were held and told that until the woman was found they would be held. One of the men thereupon produced the $50 and they were released.

Socialists Win First Victory in Santiago

Santiago—For the first time in the history of the country, the Socialist party has obtained parliamentary representation. In the recent congressional elections two seats in the chamber of deputies were won by Socialists while the democratic party largely supported by organized labor, substantially increased its representation in the lower house.

At the Theatres

The versatility of Elsie Ferguson is shown in the Paramount picture, "Lady Roca's Daughter," produced Monday night at the Apollo theatre, and to be repeated Tuesday night.

She plays three parts in the picture, which is acceptable because of its cleanness, good acting and good characterization.

The film is the picturization of Mrs. Humphry Ward's novel of the same name. The scenes are laid in England with English characters.

The three parts are different in conception and treatment, the first two laying a foundation for the main plot to follow. The heroine of the plot is Julie Le Breton, who suffers because of an unhappy inheritance and heredity.

There are many charming costumes displayed by Elsie Ferguson and the supporting cast. The scenes were represent the various historical periods in which the scenes are depicted. On Wednesday and Thursday, the film, "Dangerous Business," is coming to the Apollo, with Constance Talmadge in the leading part.

You'll need it. Take that from me, it's straight. You're going in trouble up to the neck." He swaggered to the door and turned. "Don't forget, Bromfield. Keep 'em out of this or you'll be sorry." His voice was like the crack of a whip. "His voice was like the crack of a whip to animals in a circus."

For once Bromfield did not jump through the hoop. "Oh, go to the devil," he said in irritation, flushing angrily.

"Better not get gay with me," advised Durand sourly.

After the door had closed on him there was a momentary pause. The younger man spoke awkwardly. "You can tell now what it was that Mr. Lindsay told you."

"We'd like to know for sure whether you're with us or with Durand," said Whitford mildly. "Of course we know the answer to that. You're with us. But we want to hear you say it flat-foot."

"Of course I'm with you. That is, I'd like to be. But I don't want to get into trouble with Mr. Whitford. Can you blame me for that?"

"You wouldn't get into trouble," argued the mine owner impatiently. "Keep telling the younger man closely, now as in a flash the solution of this mystery—the explanation of the tangle to which various scattered threads had been leading her."

"How could he be hurt, Bee?" The girl let Bromfield have it straight from the shoulder. "Because Clarendon did it."

"My God, you know!" he cried, aghast-faced. "He told you?"

No, he didn't tell you. For some reason he's protecting you. But I know it just the same. You did it."

"It was in self-defense," he pleaded. "Then why didn't you say so? Why did you let Clay be accused instead of coming forward at once?"

"I was waiting to see if he couldn't show he was innocent without—"

"Without getting you into it. You wanted to be shielded at any cost. The scorn that intolerant youth has for moral turpitude rang in her clear voice."

"I thought maybe we could both get out of it that way," he explained weakly.

"Oh, you thought so! As soon as you saw this morning's paper you ought to have hurried to the police station and given your side up."

"It was ill, I keep telling you." "You mean Clarendon couldn't do it?"

Whitford interposed. "Hold on, honey. Don't rub it in. Clarendon was a bit rattled. That's natural. The question is, what's he going to do now?"

The host groaned. "I don't see I go to the chair—and I don't strike the man to save my life. I wasn't trying to kill the fellow. He was shooting at me, and I had to do it."

"We've got proof of that. Lindsay is one witness. He must have seen it all. I've got in my pocket one of the bullets Collins shot. That's more evidence. Then—"

Beatrice broke in excitedly. "Dad, Mr. Muldoon just told me over the phone that they've got the express wagon. The plank with the bullet holes was in it. And the driver has confessed that he and a carpenter, whom he had given, changed the partition for Durand."

Whitford gave a subdued whoop. "We win. That lets you out, Clarendon. The question now isn't whether you or Clay will go to the penitentiary, but whether Durand will. We can get Clay out in time to go home to dinner with us."

Bromfield smiled wanly. He came to time as gallantly as he could. "All right, I'm elected to take his place. I—"

"Only for a day or two, Clarendon," said the older man. "As soon as we can get together a coroner's jury we'll straighten everything out."

"Yes," agreed the clubman lifelessly.

It was running through his mind already that he should be freed of this murky charge, he would only have escaped Seylla to go to wreck on Charybdis. For it was a twenty to one bet that Jory would go to Whitford with the story of his attempt to hire the young leader to smirch Lindsay's reputation.

CHAPTER XXXVI.
A Morning

It must be admitted that when Bromfield made up his mind to clear himself he did it thoroughly. His confession to the police was quiet and businesslike. He admitted responsibility for the presence of the West-erner at the Omnium Club. He explained that he had taken him there, but he had come only as a spectator out of curiosity. The story of the killing was told by him simply and clearly. After he had struck down the gun, he had done a bolt downstairs and got away by a back alley. His instinct had been to escape from the raid and from the consequences of what he had done, but of course he could not let anybody suffer in his place. So he had come to give himself up.

The late afternoon papers carried the story that Clarendon Bromfield, well-known man about town, had confessed to having killed "Slim" Collins and had completely exonerated Lindsay. It was expected that the latter would be released immediately. He was then taken to his cell at the home of the Whitfords. The mine owner had wanted to go on the bond of Bromfield, but his offer had been rejected.

Billy Whiskers

"I'm not in the habit of refusing your requests, Billykins," said Billy Whiskers, whom most animals might call a cat. "I'm not in the habit of refusing your requests for help. Which only proves the more conclusively that but the very closest of our friends ever know us through and through."

"Well, then," chuckled the Plymouth Rock beauty, "though they have labeled me with a blue tag it's not worth the trouble of being called like that. My way to do is to get me a book."

"The whole front is the door, kind sir," she made reply, "but it's most securely locked."

"You're sure?" for this would be a hard problem.

"You have it. Every time they bring me fresh water and corn, the man turns the knob there on the left side. But you can very easily turn that place open in this wire screen that will be big enough for me to squeeze through. Oh, please, say Billy went up close to the Plymouth Rock's tiny house, lowered his head and after turning it this way and that he stopped proudly back, bleating his satisfaction and pleasure.

"Step out, pretty Topsy, and enjoy a stroll about the grounds," he invited.

"Step out? Step out?" she chuckled indignantly. "I would if I could. Don't make my life more unbearable than it is by such idle words!"

"But Topsy, I mean it. Come out! Your cage is a prison no longer. You old torment!" Topsy scolded.

"Why are you always late to school, Alfred?"

"I don't have enough time to get ready. That's funny. I always have plenty of time."

"I know, sir, but I wash."

and forgetting the barrier between them, she fluffed up her feathers and his tender spot.

Open her door and out tumbled the hen, fluttering wildly to the floor.

"Help, help!"

"You're free, Topsykins!" congratulated her rescuer, "Hurray, Hurray!" he exclaimed.

"Free, you naughty fellow? Who was in a worse fix than I at this moment? I'd like to know!" was her inconsistent retort. "What do you propose doing with me now that I'm out? You certainly must know I can't wander about loose. I'll stay at home in this dreadful place. And I can't travel all the way back to Covel's Farm. What shall I do, oh dear, what shall I do?"

"You're a rummy, and that's my opinion of you. Hop back into that thing and I'll look you up."

"I will, you horrid Billy! I might have known better than to listen to any of your wild schemes," and up she flew.

Billy wasted no time in closing the door—an easy task, but when one attempts to turn a wooden bolt, it is a different matter. A wicked gleam leaped to his eye.

"Ha, ha! A good joke on the whimsical little lady! I'll leave it unlocked. She is sure to have a most miserable day of it, and won't she splutter when I tell her liberty was within her reach?" and chuckling to himself, he hurried off, unheeding Topsy's plaintive calls for him to return.

"She has changed her mind once too often," he mumbled. "Now she'll pay for it!"

(Billy goes on his adventures tomorrow.)

HOME-MADE LETTER DUPLICATOR SAVES SECRETARY'S TIME

Being secretary of the Broadville Boys' club was no cinch, as Bert Edwards found out. Especially was this so when it came to writing the notices of meetings to the 26 members or special invitations to prospects. So Bert made himself a duplicator.

He had the drugstore measure out 15 fluid ounces of glycerine, 15 fluid ounces of water, four ounces of gelatin, and one-half fluid ounce of vanilla. Then he mixed the water with the gelatin and allowed it to stand till the latter became soft. Then he added the glycerine, and put the whole on the telephone stove.

It remained there until the gelatin had dissolved completely and all the water had steamed away. The mixture was placed in a corner to cool. Gradually the carbolide acid was added to keep it from becoming sour. Then Bert poured it all into a discarded shallow tin cake pan, and as soon as it became solid and cold, the hectograph was ready to use.

At the stationer's he purchased a bottle of aniline ink. With a pen he wrote the message he desired to copy on the outside cards, on a piece of paper. When the ink became dry he placed the paper, face down, on the gelatin, and carefully rubbed to transfer the ink to the hectograph. After a few minutes he slowly stripped the paper from the gelatin and found the writing to be transferred in the reverse.

He laid a clean sheet of paper on the gelatin and pressed down on it easily. When he pulled it off the writing was clearly transferred.

After having made the required number of copies of the message, he washed the face of the hectograph clean with a sponge, using water that was slightly warm. The outfit was then all ready to be used again.

BOY SCOUTS PLAN A LONG TRIP THROUGH

(Special to the Boys and Girls' Newspaper.)

Two hundred Boy Scouts of Clinton, Iowa, under the direction of their executive, O. O. Pierce, are planning a 30 day trip through Yellowstone Park for this coming summer. The boys will leave Clinton on June 15, travel by auto to the park, and return home on July 15.

A portable wireless outfit will be part of the equipment the Scouts will carry. Medical attention is to be provided. "This is one of the biggest things we have ever undertaken," says executive Pierce.

Jean's Home-Made "Apple Punch"

Jean had invited her friend Helen to spend the afternoon at her home. Toward 3 o'clock Jean brought out a pitcher of something or other and poured a glass for Helen. Helen drank it and smacked her lips.

"What is it, Jean?" she asked. "That," replied Jean, "is what I call apple punch. I made it myself."

"How?"

"I took three juicy apples, wiped them clean with a cloth, and without peeling them or taking out the cores, I sliced them into very thin pieces. Mother has a large earthenware jar in the pantry and I put the apple slices into it, together with a sugar bowl, a glass of half a lemon, and a little more than an ounce of sugar. Over all this I poured a pint of water and then I covered the jar with a plate to keep the steam in, allowed the concoction to stand till it became cold and—here it is. Delicious, isn't it?"

Thousands of Weak Nervous People Have Been "Fooled"

They Took the Wrong Kind of Iron. ARE YOU ONE OF THEM? How to Tell.

I was talking to a young lady who was very nervous, irritable and run-down—she also suffered from shortness of breath, heart palpitation and indigestion—her doctor told her she was anemic—suffering from IRON STARVATION OF THE BLOOD and advised her to take iron.

She told me she tried NUXATED IRON and had not received much benefit—I said ARE YOU SURE it was NUXATED IRON—She said yes, that it was a small, smooth, round black tablet—I said YOU ARE WRONG—Nuxated Iron does not take Nuxated Iron.

I said Nuxated Iron contains ORGANIC IRON like the iron in YOUR BLOOD and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples, which is an entirely different thing from metallic iron which people usually take and which is made merely from the action of strong acids on small pieces of iron. Nuxated Iron is so prepared that it will not irritate the tenderest child's stomach and it will be absorbed into the blood.

NUXATED IRON also contains a product which represents the principal chemical constituent of active living nerve—IRON FERRUGINEOUS—so that it might be said to be both a BLOOD and a NERVE FOOD. This remarkable nerve force product was brought to the attention of the French Academy of Medicine by the celebrated Dr. Richer. It not only helps revitalize worn-out exhausted nerves, but it undoubtedly increases the efficiency of the iron itself.

Nuxated Iron also contains powdered iron, an extremely valuable product for toning up the stomach and stimulating digestion, thereby increasing metabolism—the power of the human body to transform food into blood. Living cells, without this power nothing you eat does you any good—you do not get the full strength out of it.

The Courts of Justice have done what they could to protect the public from fraudulent imitations of Nuxated Iron—Nuxated Iron imitations were ordered by the celebrated Dr. Richer. It not only helps revitalize worn-out exhausted nerves, but it undoubtedly increases the efficiency of the iron itself.

Beware of substitutes. Always look for the word "Nuxated" on the wrapper and the box. In every tablet, your money will be refunded by the manufacturer if you do not obtain perfectly satisfactory results. At all druggists.

He is a palatable little chap and figured out in his salt-and-pepper checkered suit with a jaunty little cap of red set back on his head, he spends all of the daylight hours polishing the trees, which without his bound train. "Quite true," said the man who advertised the car, "but surely you are not in the market for it."

"No," was the reply, "but I only live across the street and I also want to sell my car. And there would be no need of my spending my money for an advertisement if people were thorough looking at your car you could just send them across the street to look at my car."
